About Kristi:

Kristi writes children stories to inspire joy and wonder as well as to help create meaningful moments for young readers and those who read alongside them. From her early days working in a library, to her time as an educator working with young children, stories have always been at the heart of what she loves – and now, she's grateful to be creating stories that spark delight and that will hopefully stay with readers long after the last page.

About The Book:

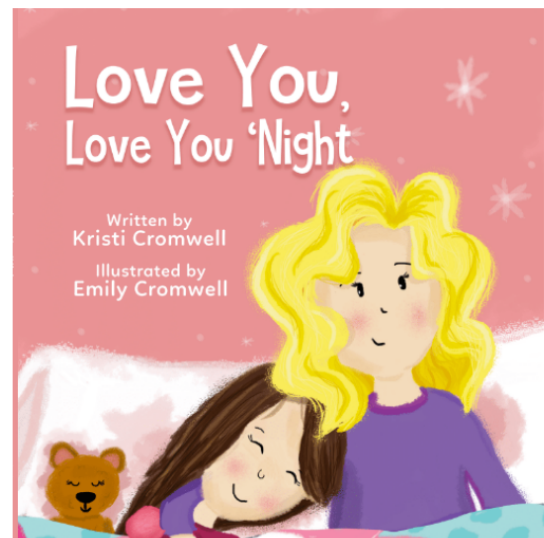

What happens when a little girl isn't quite ready to say goodnight?

In Love You, Love You 'Night, young Emily is determined to stay up just a little bit longer. She lingers in the doorway, finds reasons to come back for one more hug, and stretches out the bedtime routine she secretly never wants to end.

Momma gently guides her toward sleep with patience, warmth, and reassurance. Through their loving back-and-forth, readers experience the comfort and security that come from knowing they are deeply loved - even when the lights go out.

Filled with humor, tenderness, and moments every parent will recognize, this heartwarming bedtime story celebrates the little rituals that matter most.

And by the final whisper of "love you, love you 'night," children will feel safe, calm, and ready for sweet dreams.
